

House Mouse

Mus musculus

Mammal · Here all year · does not hibernate

Photo by 3268zauber, CC BY-SA 3.0, via Wikimedia Commons

A small grey-brown mouse with a greyish rather than white belly, smaller eyes and ears than a wood mouse, and a scaly, almost hairless tail about as long as its body. House mice have lived alongside people in Britain for thousands of years, arriving with early agriculture, and around Dumfries they are found in buildings, farms and grain stores rather than out in the countryside.

BEHAVIOUR

House mice are nocturnal, highly social and thoroughly commensal — they can live entirely indoors, get most of their water from food, and breed year-round in a heated building. They are inquisitive about new objects, unlike rats, which is why traps work on them more readily. A strong musty smell, small dark droppings and gnawed packaging are usually the first evidence of them.

WHEN TO SEE IT

J	F	M	A	M	J	J	A	S	O	N	D
---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---

QUICK FACTS

FAMILY	Mice and rats (Muridae)
SIZE	Body 7-10 cm plus a 7-10 cm tail
UK STATUS	Long-established introduction; common and unprotected

Photo by 3268zauber, CC BY-SA 3.0, via Wikimedia Commons